Acrow Bridge's Paul Sullivan Speaks at Legal Alliance Conference in New York on International Trade and Finance

Focus on issues impacting economic development through infrastructure investment

(Parsippany, New Jersey) – 11 May 2015 – Paul Sullivan, Vice President of International Business Development at Acrow Bridge, a leading international bridge engineering and supply company, recently shared his insights on project management and trade finance at the AVRIO Advocati Law conference held May 7-10 in New York. The event was co-sponsored by Leech Tishman.

AVRIO Advocati is a nonprofit, European-based global network of law firms seeking to exchange professional knowledge and foster legal cooperation as well as legal research on European and international issues. Sponsor of two annual Legal Alliance Conferences, the network's recent New York event focused on macro-economics, private equity investment and trade finance themes for business people and lawyers. The event was attended by approximately 50 delegates from Europe, Asia and North America.

"I am honored to have been a part of this influential event," said Sullivan, who is a frequent speaker at international development conferences and who has also been a key supporter of efforts to maintain funding for the Export-Import Bank of the United States. "Infrastructure investment in emerging markets – particularly in Africa, the Middle East, Latin America and Asia – serves as a cornerstone to sustainable economic development."

Other event speakers were Daniel Alpert, a founding managing partner of Westwood Capital LLC; Dan Mongan, Leech Tishman Partner; Tero Tiilikainen, Director, Key Capital; and Christian Sarailis of Sarailis Advocates.
